PROJECT MANAGEMENT:

We recognise that project management is a key element of our Superyacht refit projects. Having completed numerous projects over many years we understand how important this crucial aspect is:

- Our team is committed to getting the project management right and making the process of doing business with the shipyard a satisfactory experience for the vessel owner.
- Oceania Marine's Project Managers follow a simple and basic philosophy focused on managing scope, resources, time and cost to ensure successful completion of projects.
- There are many elements to any refit. This means that we treat management and administration of projects as a critical aspect of shipyard operations.
- Once projects begin, the project managers are supported by an efficient structure involving project accounting/reporting, area co-ordinators, supervisors and client liaison.

PROTECTIVE COATINGS:

Oceania Marine Coatings operates a large specialist superyacht painting team:

- The application and maintenance of protective coatings, including external and internal brightwork, forms a critical part of the services offered to superyachts at the shipyards.
- With the size and technical complexity of painting projects growing, Oceania Marine is committed to meeting the challenge.
- To ensure that this happens our coating team is managed as an exclusive dedicated team committed to providing a high quality service to Superyacht clients.
- Our paint managers and staff are the most experienced available from within the Oceania region with many years of superyacht, new build and refit experience.
- They possess high level, yacht quality skills ranging from corrosion repairs and fairing to the application of metallic and pearlescent finishes.

ENGINEERING SERVICES:

Oceania Marine Engineering Services are equipped to deal with the modern Superyacht. These vessels are a complex machine often incorporating the very latest materials and technology whilst having to meet the demands of chartering and long ocean passages:

- Under guidance of qualified project managers and supervisors Oceania Marine has teams of highly skilled marine fitter turners and fabricators.
- All are very experienced in every aspect of repair, maintenance and replacement including survey requirements.
- Heavy duty workshops on site capable of handling all engineering needs including shafts etc.
- Experienced with large scale plate replacement, hull extensions and conversions.
